from the pastor

June 5, 2005

Halfway home.

On trips, I always like to mark the “halfway” point. Halfway there; halfway home; or halfway through the vacation itself.

Halfway points are a good time to take stock of how things are going. And, they’re a useful reminder that eventually the trip or vacation will end.

Today, I’m 35 years old.

I don’t feel 35. I still feel like a kid playing “grown-up.” But I am 35, regardless of how I feel.

The Bible, in the Book of Psalms, says a man’s days are threescore and ten ... 70 years.

If I live a normal life span, I’m halfway done.

Those sins in my life that I keep planning on conquering, those goals that I hope to see fulfilled, the difference that I hope to make for others, and, the relationship I hope to have with God ...

It’s halftime.

I’m behind in some of those categories.

I need to huddle, get motivated, get in the game.

Where are you in life’s game?

Maybe you’ve just graduated from high school ... you’ve just finished the first quarter.

Maybe you’re in your fifties ... last quarter ... sixties ... crunch time.

The Bible says, “Let us number our days, that we might apply our hearts to wisdom.”

Look at the clock, take stock, get in the game!
